

Simon Fulber, Senior Performance and Learning Consultant, Vancity Group

Outline

Inspire Learning by Being Technologically Adventurous

Anything is possible...that's how it may seem to learning professionals when it comes to technology-enabled learning. From webinars to mobile learning, Facebook to YouTube, the ability to utilize new spaces for learning can be a bit overwhelming. As learning professionals, we need to keep our focus on learning and remain adventurous as we begin to step into these new spaces. This session will share how Vancity utilizes technology in the delivery of learning and aims to inspire participants to become more adventurous about how they can leverage the power of technology-enabled learning.

Bio

With a career spanning 15 years within Vancity Credit Union, Simon has learned from all aspects within the organization. His Vancity experiences includes working on a Youth Advisory Council helping with product development and conducting workshops on infusing youth involvement into organizations, partnering with Immigrant Services Society of BC to offer basic banking orientation programs, managing both internal and external eLearning projects, and always seeking to empower learning through technology. He currently works with Vancity's Organization Development and Learning Department as a Senior Performance and Learning Consultant.